

Typhoon Mawar was one of the worse typhoons to devastate the island of Guam in more than two decades. As families throughout Naval Base Guam and the island are still in the process of rebuilding, there were a number of behind-the-scenes key players who assisted in helping to bring a sense of normalcy back into the community's quality of life.

Over the course of the next few weeks, we will be highlighting the work of those who have worked tirelessly since the aftermath of Typhoon Mawar.

After several of the NEX facilities sustained significant damage, Team NEX worked around the clock to open their doors to provide services and goods. From managing gas lines and generator sales, to bringing in food trucks and working to restore the laundromat - Team NEX has proved their dedication and commitment to our community once again.

Matt Lowe MEMS Academy State Director for Guam, matthew.s.lowe.civ@us.navy.mil reported about the Typhoon that hit Guam and the coordinated efforts of all the military and civilian personnel who have responded to help repair the damage.

Recovery continues here on Guam; state of emergency was extended yesterday. There are still people without power and water (~91% power restored/96% water restored). There are folks living in shelters whose homes were totally destroyed. Our poorest communities are suffering the most, but there has been excellent outreach and volunteer support to assist in their recovery (debris cleanup, food and water delivery, emergency roof repairs, and countless donations of all kinds.
